

I'm small

I'm small as a new fallen drop of dew
As a minute snowflake
So fragile is its hue
I'm small as a stray light reflected in a cave
As a remote vibration
Of the ocean waves
I'm small as a forgotten ancient sign
Being undistinguished
By a common eye
Like a shy touch of shadow at sunset
A seed of feeling
That's not developed yet
Yes, I'm small but maybe our globe
In space would be just like I
A little starry dot

Written by Luba Yamskaya 2006 ©

Want to come play? Click me!!